FOURTH SUNDAY OF ADVENT

Jesus is truly the light of the world. His light does not dull or fade. He illuminates everything he touches. His light is healing — it restores our souls. We were made to live in His light. REFLECT: Take a few moments to pray with today's Gospel. What is Jesus saying to you? How can you honor Jesus as the light of your life?

ALTAR FLOWERS

The flowers on the Main Altar this weekend are in honor of Claire Darnall and Michael Boynton, who celebrated their marriage on December 17. Congratulations Claire and Michael!

TABERNACLE VIGIL CANDLE

EMAIL AND TEXT SCAMS TARGETING PARISHIONERS OF THE DIOCESE AND SAINT JOSEPH CHURCH - BE AWARE!

Once again, we are seeing an increase nationally in email and phone scams. There is an uptick of people impersonating parish priests or staff in an attempt to solicit funds. The creation of false email accounts claiming to be the bishop, diocese, pastor, priest, and staff is occurring in higher numbers. Please note that the Diocese of Charleston, Saint Joseph Church, its clergy, and staff will never solicit funds electronically in this manner. We are also seeing a new scam in which requests are coming to parishioners in the form of text messages from our clergy. Msgr. Harris and Father Frei will never reach out this way to ask for donations.

What to look for in determining a scam? These text and email scams are solicitations in which the criminals send a casual and brief note like, "Good morning John, I want to send some electronic gift cards to some needy members of the community." "Can you help?" "Been trying to reach out..." If it is a text, the number will not be local. If it is an email, the signature line uses a familiar name of the pastor, like "Fr Joe." The email recipient then replies to an email address that is not the pastor's, but an imposter's. A close examination of the sender's email address will reveal that the address is phony. But, it could be easily overlooked because the imposter will take a legitimate email address (like FrJoe@gmail.com and use FrJoe@msn.com - email address looks very similar ... yet, different). We ask that parishioners be extremely cautious when responding to these types of texts or emails.

In general, when responding to emails or texts that request money or something of a confidential matter, consider responding to the request in person or by telephone to confirm the email is legitimate. Texting and email should only be used as secondary methods of validation. Be sure not to click any part of these emails or text messages as clicking opens malicious software. Also, never share your password, or open an infected email attachment. Attackers work hard to make these messages convincing and tap your emotional triggers, such as urgency or curiosity. They can make the communications look like they came from someone you know, such as a friend or even a trusted company you frequently use. They could even add logos of your bank or forge the email address so the message appears more legitimate. Attackers send these messages to millions of people. They do not know who will take the bait, all they know is the more they send, the more people will fall victim. For a phishing attack to work, the bad guys need to trick you into doing something. Fortunately, there are clues that a message is an attack. Here are the most common ones: A tremendous sense of urgency that demands "immediate action" before something bad happens, like threatening to close an account or send you to jail. The attacker wants to rush you into making a mistake. Pressuring you to bypass or ignore your policies or procedures at work. A strong sense of curiosity or something that is too good to be true. (No, you did not win the lottery.) Our church communicates through our weekly electronic updates and via mail.
